5 steps to become an approved centre

1. Make an enquiry and find out more

Register your interest by completing our enquiry form or contact our Customer Services team (+44 (0) 1543 266 867 / customer@i-l-m.com). Within two days, our Business Development Executive will be in touch to talk through the options available, before passing on your details to your assigned Business Development Manager.

2. Discuss your requirements

Your local Business Development Manager will then contact you to discuss next steps, including the plans for your organization and full details of ILM's qualification portfolio and/or recognition scheme. They will run through what you need to deliver and assess ILM qualifications and programmes, and share details of the support available from ILM.

3. Pay the approval fee and submit your application

You will need to complete and submit your details, along with payment for the appropriate approval fee. You will then be required to complete the relevant approval application documents and send these back to ILM with the supporting information listed in the forms.

4. Quality check

Once payment has been received and all the relevant documentation has been submitted, you will be allocated a Quality and Compliance Manager. They will set up an appointment with you either via an on-site visit or telephone call/video link for international centres to review your application.

5. Application outcome

And that's it! Once you've received written confirmation, you will be given access to our support guides and resources, and a member of our Customer Service team and your Business Development Manager will be in touch to settle you in to working with ILM. Remember - your Business Development Manager will be available to support you throughout your application process, so do not get in touch with them should you have any questions whatsoever.

Big thank you to employers for senior leader apprenticeship revision

Sally Timmins, 12 January 2021 - Apprenticeship standards, Employers

I am delighted to report that the revision of the apprenticeship standard is now complete.

The Secretary of State for Education requested the review back in February 2020 and we have been updating on developments through a series of blogs.

The knowledge, skills and behaviours (KSBs) apprentices must learn as part of the apprenticeship standard and end-point assessment have been brought right up to date and the apprenticeship continues to align to Institute of Leadership and Management (ILM) and Chartered Management Institute (CMI) professional recognition.

Delivery of the apprenticeship has been made more flexible with the removal of the Masters qualification as a mandated part of the apprenticeship- although an employer would still be free to use such a qualification to deliver the apprenticeship, so long as it aligns to the KSBs. Apart from registration and certification costs, these would still be fundable under the levy up to the funding band limit.

- Expect changes in the rules to what is and isn't eligible for funding from the levy, as ESFA carrying out review of eligible and ineligible costs.
- If ATE apprenticeship funding band model review outcome held back due to waiting for the ESFA eligible costs review (point above).
